

NEW AMERICAN VOTERS 2022: Harnessing the Power of Naturalized Citizens

JULY 2022

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This report was written by Tom K. Wong, Associate Professor of Political Science and founding Director of the U.S. Immigration Policy Center (USIPC) at the University of California, San Diego; Maya Lu; and Lilly Amirjavadi. Special thanks to those who contributed to the analysis, review, and editing of this report, including Nancy Flores, Deputy Director at the National Partnership for New Americans (NPNA); Diego Iñiguez-López, Associate Director of Policy and Campaigns at NPNA; and Nicole Melaku, Executive Director at NPNA. This report was designed and produced by Alexander Graphics. This report updates data from a previous NPNA report, The Power of Newly Naturalized Citizens in the 2020 Elections written by Diego Iñiguez-López, with research conducted by Abdelnasser Rashid, former New American Voters 2020 Campaign Researcher for NPNA.

Support for the New American Voters campaign and this report was provided by Tides Foundation and SEIU.

ABOUT THE REPORT'S CONTRIBUTING ORGANIZATIONS

The National Partnership for New Americans (NPNA) is a multiethnic, multiracial coalition of 60 of the nation's largest immigrant and refugee rights organizations with reach across 40 states. Together with our members, we advance immigrant equity and inclusion policies, build and expand immigration legal services and integration programming capacity, and drive campaigns that strengthen democracy through increased civic participation.

To learn more about the NPNA, visit partnershipfornewamericans.org

The Service Employees International Union (SEIU) is an organization of two million members united by the belief in the dignity and worth of workers and the services they provide, and is dedicated to improving the lives of workers and their families by creating a more just and humane society.

The U.S. Immigration Policy Center (USIPC) at UC San Diego conducts and supports rigorous social science research to advance understanding of the foundations and consequences of U.S.

immigration policy. Immigration has played an integral role in American history and is sure to feature prominently in America's future. But what should the immigration policies of our nation of immigrants be? The USIPC brings together leading academics, policy analysts, immigrant-rights leaders, and policymakers across all levels of government to conceptualize, debate, and design a new U.S. immigration policy agenda that meets the demands of the 21st century.

Asian and Pacific Islander American Vote (APIAVote) is the nation's leading nonpartisan nonprofit dedicated to engaging, educating, and empowering Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) communities to strengthen their voices and create impact. For decades, our action-driven organization has led national initiatives to ensure AAPIs are represented and heard.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Across the country—especially prominent in the last presidential election—the new American majority has begun to demonstrate its power in numbers.

This report analyzes data of a unique subset of the new American majority: recently naturalized citizens, or as they are referred to throughout this report; new American voters. These new citizens were part of a coalition of voters of color who turned out in record numbers and swayed the outcome of the last presidential election.

This report analyzes who new American voters are and where they can have the largest potential impact. This multiracial, multi-generational, and majority women group of naturalized citizens represent a potential voting bloc that in 2022 can decide various political outcomes including who controls the U.S. Senate by voting in states like Georgia, Arizona, Nevada, Pennsylvania, and Florida.

These potential voters are a substantial but only part of the larger group of new citizens who have naturalized since 2016. By the time of the 2022 midterm elections, they can total an estimated 5.19 million.

However, the critical factor for newly naturalized citizens to use this political power and impact is voter registration and turnout. Newly naturalized citizens have lower voter registration and turnout rates than U.S.-born citizens.¹ This means that voter mobilization efforts specifically targeting recently naturalized citizens are necessary.

This is why the National Partnership for New Americans, a coalition of 60 immigrant and refugee rights organizations with reach across 40 states, is launching the New American Voters 2022 campaign with its member organizations, national partners, and cities and counties. The campaign will encourage newly naturalized citizens to register and vote by strategically targeting them, especially in states where they reside in large numbers. It will do this in culturally sophisticated ways like partnerships with ethnic media, digital and social media advertisements, public service announcements, working with mayors and cities, and recruiting celebrities, cultural figures, and influencers to get the message out to newly naturalized citizens.

KEY FINDINGS

- Newly naturalized citizens are a potential voting block of over 5.19 million that is multiracial, multigenerational, and are composed of a slight majority of women.
- The large majority of the estimated 5.19 million newly naturalized citizens, 4.4 million of which naturalized after the election of Donald Trump, have responded to the Trump administration's multiple attacks on immigrant and refugee communities by naturalizing.
- Over 80 percent (80.5 percent) of newly naturalized citizens who naturalized from 2016 to 2020 are originally from the Americas and Asia, which include Latin American and Asian and Pacific Islander countries. Almost 90 percent (89.9 percent) are originally from the Americas, Asia, and Africa.
- The majority of newly naturalized citizens are women (55.5 percent).
- Roughly one third of newly naturalized citizens were 18 to 34 years old when they naturalized (31.7 percent). Over one third were 35 to 49 years old (36.9 percent). And roughly one third were 50 years or older when they naturalized (31.4 percent).
- If they vote, newly naturalized citizens can sway outcomes in upcoming elections in politically important states like Georgia, Arizona, Nevada, Pennsylvania, and Florida, among others.
- The number of newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 is larger than the margins of victory for the 2020 presidential election in Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Nevada, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin.
- The number of newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 is also larger than the margin of victory for the Senate seat up for re-election in 2022 in Georgia.
- In Georgia, newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 from Africa were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- In Georgia, newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 from Latin American and Caribbean countries were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.

- In Georgia, newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 from Asian and Pacific Islander were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- In Georgia, newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 from African and Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries, are over seven times the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- In Georgia, the largest national origin group of newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020, those originally from India, nearly equal the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- In Arizona, the largest national origin group of newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020, those originally from Mexico, alone were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- In Arizona, newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 from Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries, are over five times the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- In Nevada, newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 from Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries, are larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- In Pennsylvania, newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 from African and Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries, nearly equal the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- In Florida, newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 from Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries, were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- Newly naturalized citizens form a formidable voting bloc. Voter mobilization efforts specifically targeting these voters are thus needed in order for all of their votes to be cast.

METHODOLOGY

This report is based on U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) data on naturalizations that occurred from Fiscal Year (FY) 2016 through FY 2020 and naturalization applications that the agency approved in FY 2021.² Estimates for naturalizations during FY 2021 are based on previous spikes in naturalizations between FY 2019 and FY 2020, right before the presidential election. “Newly naturalized citizens” are defined as those who have naturalized since FY 2016. “New American Voters” are defined as those who have naturalized since FY 2016 and can subsequently register to vote.

This report and the tables in the Addendum separate the region in correspondence with the United Nations regional classifications, where newly naturalized citizens are originally from the Americas, Asia, Europe, Africa, and Oceania.³ Except for Table A10 which is calculated from the 2020 1-Year ACS, this report is based on USCIS data.⁴ All of the tables referenced throughout this report and additional tables can be found in the Addendum.

The New American Voters Impact Model (Table A8 and Table A16) calculates what are the most “politically important states” based on six factors: 1) newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 as a multiple of the state’s 2016 presidential vote margin; 2) the average presidential election margin (in 2012, 2016, and 2020); 3) group density; 4) the presence of a competitive U.S. Senate race; 5) the presence of a competitive gubernatorial race; and 6) the presence of a competitive race for control of state legislative chambers. All of these factors are multiplied by each other in order to arrive at a raw score. That raw score is standardized on a 1 to 99 scale, as seen in Table A16. The 15 highest scoring states are represented in Table A8 and are termed “politically important states” throughout this report. A more in-depth explanation of the model factors can be found in the Addendum.

RISING ELECTORATE OF NEW AMERICAN VOTERS

Newly naturalized citizens represent a potential voting bloc that is multiracial, multigenerational, geographically diverse, and almost evenly split among men and women, with a slight majority of women. If they register and ultimately vote as a bloc, they can help to determine the outcome of national, state, and local elections. Significant subsets of naturalized citizens in certain states can also ultimately decide who is elected.

Newly naturalized citizens are estimated to reach over 5 million by the time of the 2022 midterm elections.

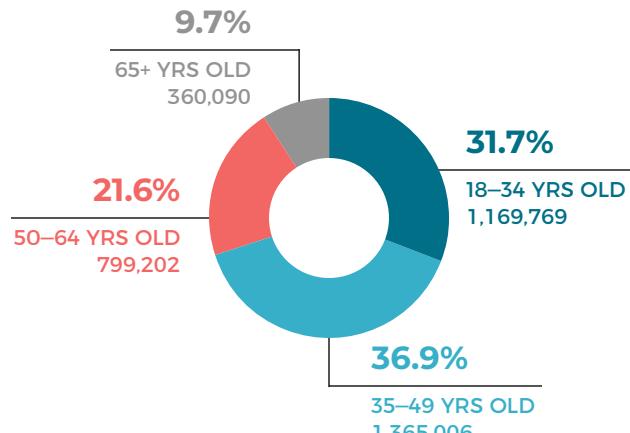

WHO ARE NEW AMERICAN VOTERS AND WHERE ARE THEY

Note: USCIS does not collect data on transgender/non-binary individuals.

This racially and regionally diverse voting bloc of newly naturalized citizens consists of a slight majority of women (55.5 percent), though in some age groups that majority is slightly larger (60.1 percent of newly naturalized citizens who are 75 years and older are women) and in others it's smaller (51.2 percent of newly naturalized citizens from 18–19 years old are women), as seen in Figures 1 and 2 above.

Newly naturalized citizens are also particularly diverse among age groups, as seen in Figure 2. Roughly one third of newly naturalized citizens were 18 to 34 years old when they naturalized (31.7 percent). Over one third were 35 to 49 years old (36.9 percent). And roughly one third were 50 years or older when they naturalized (31.3 percent). A majority of all newly naturalized citizens during this period were 40 years old and above (54.6 percent). Just under a majority were under 40 years old (45.4 percent). Newly naturalized citizens thus represent a multigenerational demographic reality.

Over 43 percent of newly naturalized citizens from 2016 to 2020 are originally from the Americas, which includes Latin America (43.3 percent). Over 37% are from Asia, which includes Asian and Pacific Islander countries (37.3 percent). Those from African countries represent just under 10 percent (9.4 percent). Just under 10 percent are from European countries (9.4 percent). And newly naturalized citizens from Oceania represent just under 1 percent of the total number of newly naturalized citizens who naturalized from 2016 to 2020 (0.5 percent).

The Americas and Asia, which include Latin American and Asian and Pacific Islander countries, represent over 80 percent of newly naturalized citizens (80.5 percent). The vast majority of newly naturalized citizens, almost 90 percent, are originally from the Americas, Asia, and Africa (89.9 percent).

This map shows the number of newly naturalized citizens, meaning those who naturalized after 2016, by state.

The ten states with the highest number of newly naturalized citizens are California, Florida, New York, Texas, New Jersey, Illinois, Massachusetts, Virginia, Georgia, and Maryland, as seen in Figure 5.

State	Number of Newly Naturalized Citizens	State	Number of Newly Naturalized Citizens

NEW AMERICAN VOTERS IN POLITICALLY IMPORTANT STATES

While newly naturalized citizens have large numbers in states like California and New York, the power of this potential voting bloc is also visible in politically important states like Georgia, Arizona, Nevada, Pennsylvania, and Florida. These politically important states not only have large numbers of newly naturalized citizens but also other factors, including slim margins of victories in past recent presidential elections, upcoming competitive Senate elections, or contested gubernatorial or state legislative elections. The New American Voters Impact Model combines these and other factors to rank states by the impact newly naturalized citizens can have in the 2022 midterm elections.

Figure 10 shows the ten most politically important states based on the New American Voters Impact Model. The data make clear that New American Voters can have a decisive impact on the 2022 midterm elections and beyond—including newly naturalized citizens from India, Mexico, and Vietnam in Georgia, those from Mexico, India, and Iraq in Arizona, and those from Mexico, Philippines, and Cuba in Nevada. Table A8 calculates how the ten most politically impactful states are broken down by the region of birth.

POTENTIAL IMPACT OF NEWLY NATURALIZED CITIZENS BASED ON THE 2020 PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

In 2022, New American Voters can have an especially large impact in the following five states:

IN GEORGIA, the 2020 presidential election margin was just 11,779 votes. The total number of persons who naturalized in Georgia between 2016 and 2020 is 96,469, over eight times the presidential margin. From India alone, there were 11,188 newly naturalized citizens, almost reaching the presidential margin of victory. Georgia also has a competitive Senate election and a contested gubernatorial election.

In Georgia, newly naturalized citizens, from 2016 to 2020, from:

- Africa were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- Latin American and Caribbean countries were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- Asian and Pacific Islander countries were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- African and Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries are over seven times the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.
- India (the largest national origin group) nearly equaled the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.

IN ARIZONA, the 2020 presidential election margin was just 10,457 ballots. The total number of persons who naturalized in Arizona from 2016 to 2020 is almost six times that margin, at 63,857. Newly naturalized citizens who were originally from Mexico alone were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election. Arizona also has a competitive Senate election and a contested gubernatorial election.

In Arizona, newly naturalized citizens, from 2016 to 2020, from:

- Mexico (the largest national origin group) alone were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.

- Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries, are over five times the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.

IN NEVADA, the 2020 presidential election margin was just 33,596 votes. The 42,976 newly naturalized citizens in Nevada between 2016 and 2020 exceeds the 2020 presidential election margin. Nevada also has a competitive Senate election and a contested gubernatorial election.

In Nevada, newly naturalized citizens, from 2016 to 2020, from:

- Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries, are larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.

IN PENNSYLVANIA, the 2020 presidential election margin was 80,555 votes. The 85,083 newly naturalized citizens in Pennsylvania between 2016 and 2020 exceeds the 2020 presidential election margin. Pennsylvania also has a competitive Senate election and a contested gubernatorial election.

In Pennsylvania, newly naturalized citizens, from 2016 to 2020, from:

- African and Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries, nearly equal the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.

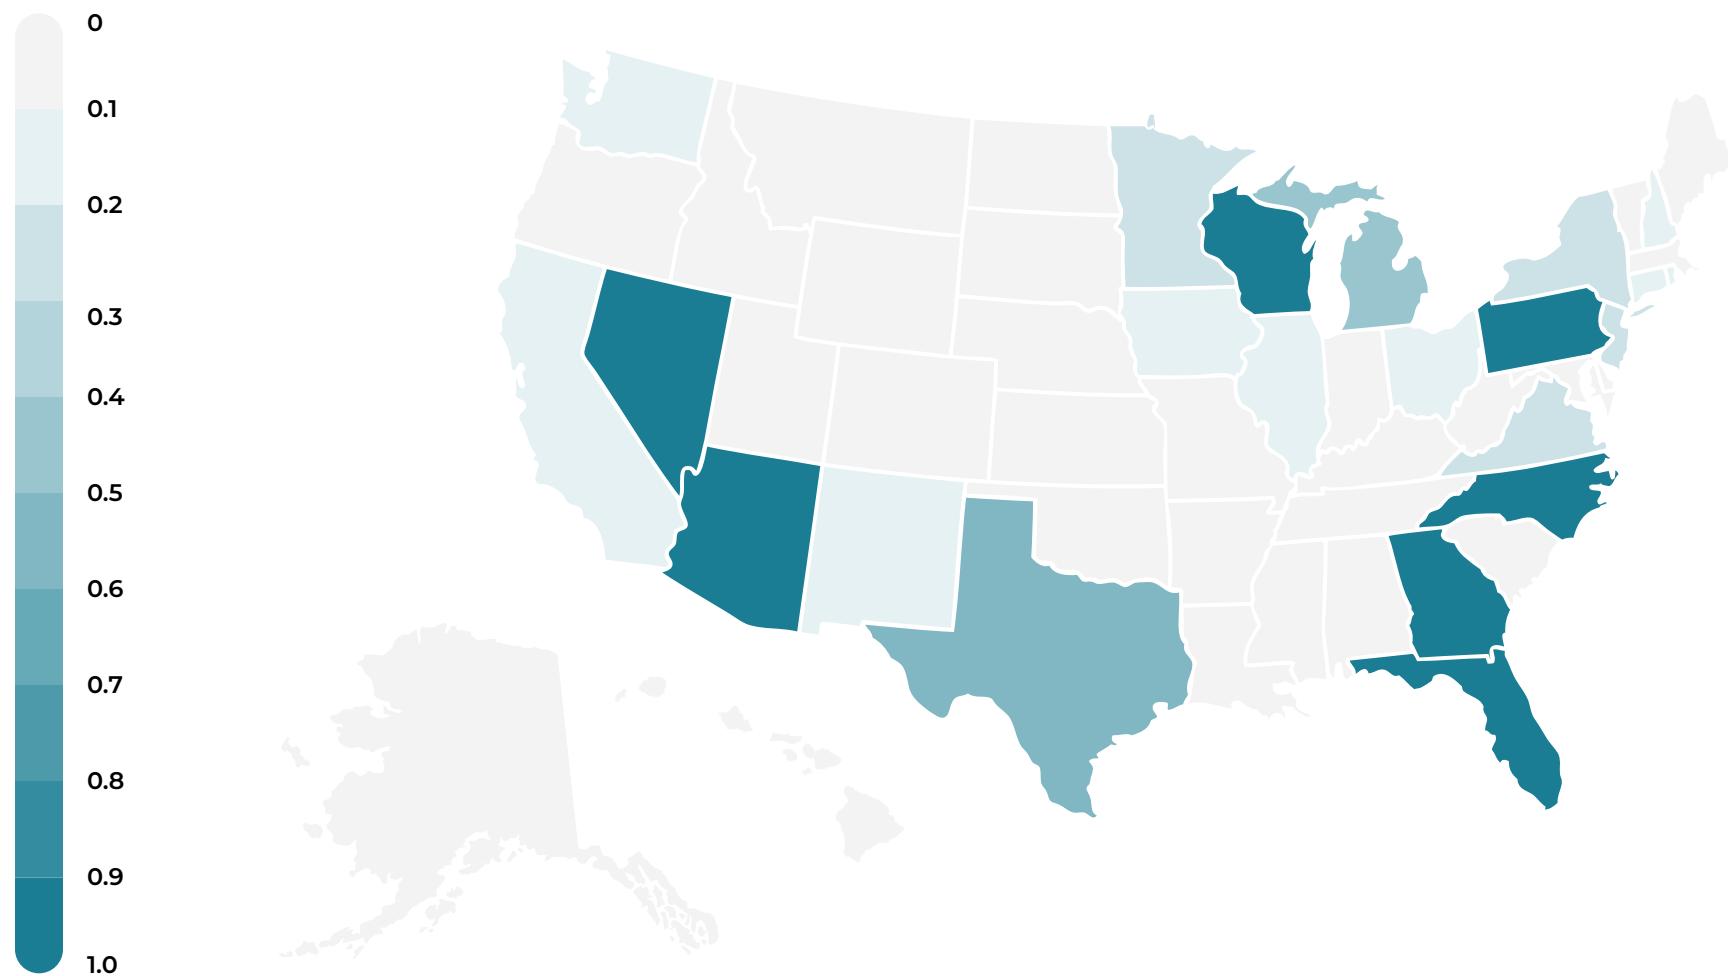

IN FLORIDA, the 2020 presidential election margin was 371,686 votes. The 429,017 newly naturalized citizens in Florida between 2016 and 2020 exceeds the 2020 presidential election margin. Florida also has a competitive Senate election and a contested gubernatorial election.

In Florida, newly naturalized citizens, from 2016 to 2020, from:

- Latin American and Caribbean countries, combined with those from Asian and Pacific Islander countries, were larger than the margin of victory during the 2020 presidential election.

POTENTIAL IMPACT OF NEWLY NATURALIZED CITIZENS BASED IN THE 2022 SENATE ELECTIONS

Newly naturalized citizens can also sway the outcome of the Senate elections taking place in 2022. For example, in Georgia, the 2021 Senate runoff election was won by 93,272 votes. The 96,469 newly naturalized citizens in Georgia between 2016 and 2020 exceeds the 2021 Senate runoff election margin.

NEW AMERICAN VOTERS 2022 CAMPAIGN

The impact of New American Voters in politically important states can be decisive. However, turnout rates of naturalized citizen voters continue to be lower than that of native-born voters. For example, in the 2020 presidential election, 61 percent of naturalized citizen voters voted. To compare, 67 percent of native-born voters voted.⁵

Since 2000, turnout in presidential elections among naturalized citizen voters was approximately 9 percent lower than turnout among native-born voters. The New American Voters 2022 campaign can help to reduce that gap and echo historical moments where, as leading academic Matt Baretto stated, “political attacks during the 1990s on California’s Latino immigrants” led to an “increase in citizenship, voter registration, and voter mobilization drives within the foreign-born Latino community.” Similarly, attacks by the former Trump administration against immigrant and refugee communities catalyzed a new generation of political engaged New American Voters.

By targeting newly naturalized citizens, the campaign can reduce voter registration and turnout gaps. This requires the deep relationships and cultural understandings that member organizations of the NPNA have developed through their naturalization programs, voter registration efforts, Get Out The Vote (GOTV) campaigns, and broader political organizing. As Tom K. Wong, associate professor of political science and founding director of the U.S. Immigration Policy Center (USIPC) at the University of California, San Diego, notes: "New American Voters are typically ignored by traditional political campaigns because they tend to be infrequent voters and are disproportionately voters of color. However, we know that when these voters are engaged, they vote. This is why the efforts such as the New American Voters 2022 Campaign are so vital. By directly and intentionally engaging, and then turning out New American Voters at the polls, the NPNA and its partners can rewrite the traditional campaign playbook so that infrequent voters and voters of color are no longer ignored."

The New American Voters 2022 Campaign will tap into these community, cultural, and organizational networks through national communications efforts and assisting localized GOTV efforts. These complementary efforts will target the largest groups of newly naturalized citizens in politically important states. For example, it will produce multi-language materials aimed at different groups among the newly naturalized, educate through traditional and social media, recruit celebrities, cultural actors, and influencers, and engage with national ethnic media. Locally, the campaign will amplify GOTV efforts with phone-banking, mailings to lists of newly naturalized citizens, targeting specific groups through social media, and working with mayors and cities to get the message out to their communities. The Campaign seeks to implement a data driven strategy to encourage the millions of newly naturalized citizens to vote and is led by member organizations of NPNA, with national partners like American Federation of Teachers; Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund; Asian Pacific American Labor Alliance, AFL-CIO; Asian and Pacific Islander American Vote; New American Leaders; Texas AFL-CIO; New American Welcome Center at the University YMCA; Building Skills Partnership; Organization of Chinese Americans (OCA)-Asian Pacific American Advocates; and Vitendo 4 Africa; as well as municipal partners like the City of Austin; City of Dallas; County of El Paso, Texas; City of Houston; City of San Diego; San Francisco Office of Civic Engagement and Immigrant Affairs; Seattle Office of Immigrant and Refugee Affairs; New York City Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs; City of Philadelphia; and City of San Jose.

Increasing turnout among New American Voters in politically important states can determine the outcomes of elections from president to state legislative chambers and can shape the direction of our nation for years and decades to come.

EXPLANATION OF FACTORS IN THE NEW AMERICAN VOTERS IMPACT MODEL

Following are the six factors of the New American Voters Impact Model used in Table A8 and Table A16.

- Naturalized as Multiple of 2020 Vote Margin: Calculates the ratio of newly naturalized to the margin in that state's 2020 presidential election.
- Weighted Presidential Average (WPA) for 2012, 2016, and 2020: While 2020 margin sought to carry significant weight, we should not ignore recent margins in each state. This factor averages the last three presidential elections' margins and assigns a score equal to $\log(1/\text{avg})$. Smaller margins lead to higher WPAs and vice versa.
- Group Density: This factor gives heavier weight to states that have larger numbers of foreign-born persons.
- U.S. Senate Battleground: Scores are impacted if there is a contested U.S. Senate election. Based on the Cook Political Report's rankings, we assign scores of 2.5 (tossup), 2 (leaning one party), 1.5 (likely one party), or 1 (solid one party, or no election).
- Gubernatorial Battleground: Scores are impacted based if there is a contested gubernatorial election. Based on the Cook Political Report's rankings, we assign scores of 2.5 (tossup), 2 (leaning one party), 1.5 (likely one party), or 1 (solid one party or no election).
- State Legislative Battleground: Scores are impacted if there are contested state legislative chamber battlegrounds. Based on the Cook Political Report's rankings, we assign scores of 2 (two chamber tossup), 1.75 (one chamber tossup), 1.5 (two chambers lean), 1.25 (one chamber leans), or 1 (no legislative elections or no battleground).

Note: These factors are multiplied by each other to arrive at a raw score.
